		Bulstrode Way	New	73A New House				Two bay, two storey hipped roof, projecting east wing over double garage.
		Bulstrode Way	75	75 Raylands Lodge				Landmark and gateway building at western end of the conservation area at the junction of Oxford Road with Bull Lane and Bulstrode Way. Single-storey flint lodge with stone dressings and slate roof. Originally one of three lodges to Orcehill House (now St. Mary's School) built during the 1840s after Orcehill had been bought by William Blount and his new wife, Lady Charlotte, daughter of the Duke of Somerset. Plans to alter the building were approved in 1908. The tall chimneys form an important element in the street-scene. Its setting would be improved by removal of the wooden fence at the front. The name is presumably taken from "Raylands Mead" the large house which stood to the north (originally "Woodbank") whose ornate gate is another landmark on the opposite side of Bulstrode Way (outside the conservation area). Julian: Small three bay, single storey, flint with cement corner stones and window surrounds. Slate roof, gothic doorway and windows, original front door. This was a former lodge to Orcehill House, with c/f similar lodge in South Park. Third lodge on Packhorse Road demolished 2006.	Positive

		East Common	1-5	1 - 5 Hartley Court (formerly listed as Aged Pilgrims Home)				5/490 Nos 1-5 Hartley Court (formerly listed as Aged 29.10.71 Pilgrims Home) - G. II Erected in memory of Sir William Alexander, Bart, 1874. In a Tudor style. "Red brick with blue brick lozenge patterns; tile roofs with pierced ridge tiles. Central 2-storeyed gabled core connected by short one-storeyed parts to outer 2-storeyed gabled terminal blocks. Brick gabled porches and triangular brick porches with castellated parapets. Windows with mullions and transoms. Barge-boarded gables. Elaborate Tudor chimneys. Plaques in each of the gables reading "Born again made new creatures in Christ Jesus", "Glory to God on high" and "Even to hoar hairs will I carry you". Marian: Built by the Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society in 1874 to designs of London architects, Habershon and Pite. The home originally accommodated 15 old people and was endowed with £250 a year by Sir John Wallis Alexander in memory of his brother who was attorney-general to the Prince of Wales. It has now been divided vertically to form five homes. In a Tudor style, the building is on a prominent site at the corner of East Common and Packhorse Road and with its matching wall and pumphouse/shelter would be a landmark if it were not partially hidden by trees. There are still glimpses of its polychrome brickwork, religious inscriptions, ornate chimneys, bargeboards and ridge-crests. Pevsner describes it as a robust High Victorian composition.	Listed
		East Common	1-5	1 - 5 Hartley Court, Garden wall and shelter				5/491 Garden wall and shelter to Hartley Court - - II 1874. In a Tudor style. Red brick with blue brick lozenges; stone dressings. Gates half boarded and with tops with wrought iron repeat of trefoil motif used for wrought iron railings; brick and stone central shelter, pointed tile roof, buttressed corners. Marian: See above. The windows of the shelter have regrettably been boarded up for security reasons. The brickwork of the wall reflects the building and has recently been sympathetically repaired in lime mortar.	Listed
		East Common	6	6 Colston Court				Red brick sheltered housing on the site of the original village school. Built c1971. Pitched tiled roofs replacement double glazing c1990. Large hipped gable blocks at east and west end. Roof continued down to make a porch over double doors.
		East Common	7	7 North Lodge				Single storey residence with a slate roof. Built c1850. Note the ornamental barge boards on south facing porch and wing. Cement rendered and scored to imitate stone.
		East Common	8	8 Gerrards Cross Memorial Centre (formerly Vicarage)				5/489 Gerrards Cross Memorial Centre (formerly - Vicarage) - II C18. Cement rendered, colour-washed; old tile roof with eaves cornice. Three storeys; 3 bays with quoins left and right. String at first floor sill level. Ground floor with open porch and 2 French windows with marginal glazing. First floor with 3 sash windows within moulded surrounds. Second floor with 3 sash windows. All windows with glazing bars. Left and right, single storeyed additions with slight central projections, early C19. Two storey extension to west including a large new hall seating 150 people. To the west is a War Memorial built c1922 which is recessed behind a row of four iconic pillars. Marian: This building would have had its origins as an encroachment on Chalfont Heath. Originally called Walters Croft House, then Watercroft, it became Gerrards Cross Vicarage when Miss Louisa Reid (one of the founders of St. James's Church) gave it to the Vicar in exchange for the old vicarage near Latchmoor Pond (the house listed as Latchmoor - see below). The central part is late C18 - wings and two lodges early C19. In 1922 the Vicar presented the stables and north lodge for conversion to a village hall as a war memorial. In 1945 house bought and given as a village centre by Eric Colston, son of Gerrards Cross's first school-master. Centre opened in 1949. Tall with three storeys and chimneys at gable ends. The building has lost some of its character by the enclosure of the off-centre Doric porch and the loss of a French window in the centre. Pevsner says the stables were converted by Lutyens into the War Memorial Building and describes it as an elegant pavilion with a columned portico in antis sheltering a handsome war memorial tablet.	Listed

		East Common	8A	South Lodge				The twin of North Lodge, single storey now used as Parish Offices with a slate roof. Built c1850. Note the ornamental barge boards on north facing porch and wing. Cement rendered and scored to imitate stone.
5879	5879	East Common	10	10 East Common, Dargle	Proposed one two storied house	Simmons & Coward Mssrs, 'Dangle', The Common, GX	23-Jun-31	Three bay detached house in "stockbroker Tudor" style apparently very little altered. Plans by Simmons & Coward, architects of London, were approved in 1931. A Mr Coward is shown living in Dargle in the 1929 street directory and it seems likely that he had this house built in 1931 and transferred the name from the house which is now number 11, The Bolt. Ground floor in red brick – some herringbone patterns – with upper storey rendered and painted white with applied black half-timbering. The front door is set back behind a porch with timber posts with the upper-storey oversailing the porch. The gable over the entrance with the hipped wing to the west forms a carefully designed picturesque composition. Interesting plaster medallions on the front. Julian: Three bay two storey half timbered and cement rendered first floor. First floor central bay bedroom with gable jettied out over porch. Note original doorway with decorative herringbone brickwork below windows to hall.	Positive

2939	2939	East Common	11	11 East Common 'The Bolt'	Proposed House	Hoare & Wheeler, 22 Portman Street, W1	27-Jun-22	Probably the house originally called Dargle (see above) plans for which were approved on 27th June 1922 for Mr Coward, designed by the prominent West End practice of Hoare & Wheeler. A picturesque house, rendered and colourwashed pale pink with white quoins. Hipped Welsh slate roof and projecting west wing. Door set behind a gable timber porch with lattice sides. Sash windows with glazing bars. The front railings have recently been replaced with a white picket fence which contributes to the rural Common character. Later but sympathetic detached garage with pitched slate roof, two doors separated by a post to retain the vertical emphasis and with an oculus in the gable. Julian: Three bay two storey with projecting west wing. Shallow hipped slate roof, cement rendered, painted pink. Rusticated brick quoins painted white and sash windows. Original wooden porch with lattice work side windows.	Positive

		East Common	14	14 Berkeley Cottage				5/488 Berkeley Cottage - - G.II Early C19, much restored and with later additions. Red brick: hipped slate roof. Two storeys. Ground floor with 2 segment-headed windows, one of 3-light and one of 4-light. First floor with a 3-light casement window either side of a central 2-light casement. Listed primarily for the cast ironwork of the porch, apparently a made-up piece of early and mid-C19 parts. Earlier wing to north east with original sash windows. Note single storey weatherboarded outbuildings with lunette window over garage related to former use as huntsman's residence. Marian: The Old Berkeley's huntsman, Thomas Oldacre, built this house in 1818. Originated as encroachment on Chalfont Heath. Most distinctive feature is its ornate porch which Pevsner says is fabricated of imported pieces of C19 cast ironwork. Front boundary of iron railings set on a low brick plinth compliments the porch. Attractive red brick in Flemish bond. Hipped slate roof is shallow but has deep overhanging eaves.	Listed
		East Common	15	15 East Common, Grove House				Picturesque early C19 brick cottage painted white. Shallow hipped Welsh slate roof. Central porch with gabled roof and finial, scalloped barge boards, timber lattice sides and integral wooden seats. 12-pane sash windows without horns, and six-panel front door. Comparison of the 1840 Tithe and 1876 OS maps shows it had been extended. Y J Lovell submitted plans for alterations/additions in 1936/7. Prominent chimney to left-hand side helps balance the house with its larger neighbour to the east. Julian: Small three bay two storey, red brick house painted white. Shallow hipped slate roof. Note original wooden lattice work porch. Built early 19th century, records in 1840, extended pre 1876 map.	Positive

1477	1477	East Common	16	16 East Common 'The White House'	New house		17-Dec-07	Built c.1908. Two storey house with full-height canted bay with white painted hanging tiles above ground floor window. Bay has half-timbered gable with carved brackets. Arch on right hand side with recessed garage. Red brick, painted white at front and plain clay tiled roof. Casement windows with an open lower part and multi-paned upper part typical of the period. Set closer to road than number 15 with no room for a front garden. Julian: Two bay two storey, tile roof. North bay gable has canted bay window through two storeys. South bay has broad arch with recessed entrance and garage door. Original entrance to the rear.	Positive

		East Common	17	17 Hine & Associates, Solicitors				Built c.1890. Formerly used as a butcher's shop and slaughter house. Now used as solicitors' office. Probably contemporary with number 16 and also set close to the road with no front garden. Two storey house with full-height canted bay to left. Stock brick with red brick segmental window arches and bands. Slate roof with pierced ridge crest. Two chimney stacks on ridge. Carriage entrance on right hand side. 12-pane sashed windows with horns. The overlarge bow shop-window, door with fanlight and fascia all in neo-Georgian style are out of character with essentially late-Victorian style building. Julian: Small four bay two storey red brick house with gabled slate roof. North bay has canted bay window. All sash windows under brick relieving arches. South bay has open entry to rear of premises. Central bays have later porch and large bay shop window.	Positive

Pebbledashed painted white. Plain clay tiled hipped roof with dormer to each side. The flat-roof dormer at Avondale could be enhanced by a hipped roof like that at Galleywood. Full height bay windows under pebbledashed gables which appear to break through the roof. Plain clay tile hanging between ground and upper bays. Central chimney stack on ridge. Small triangular oriel window with stained glass on shaped bracket at side of each front door. Hipped tiled door canopies on shaped timber bracket. Casement windows, altered at Avondale although it does retain stained glass window to landing at side. Galleywood extended to side in 1920s with garage and first floor with oriel window; Flemish bond red brick. Header bond beneath bay windows. Julian: Two semi detached two storey houses. Pebble dash hipped tile roof each having canted bay windows under projecting gables.	Positive

		East Common	20-21	20 Rose Cottage and 21 High Trees				Formerly called Oak Cottages. It is surprising that this pair of cottages is not listed. Early C19, rendered and painted white with fictive ashlar (lined to look like stone). Hipped slate roof with central ridge chimney stack. Doors set in open porches at each side with set-back upper storey. Central blind windows. Windows 12-pane sashes without horns. Small front garden behind metal railings. Garages set behind houses to side; that at Rose Cottage with hipped slate roof to match house. Julian: Pair of two storey semi detached houses with hipped slate roof, cement rendered to imitate stone. Projecting bays to north and south containing porch and ? Staircase. Note blind central window openings at point where two houses divide. Built c1840.	Positive

Mixed red and brown brick with two gables, one half-timbered, the other with a lozenge shaped tile decoration and gable-springers or kneelers of thin stacked tiles. Casement windows with leaded lights. Brick arched porch with stained glass which has gable-springers or kneelers of thin stacked tiles. Stained glass window above porch roof. Plain clay tiled roof. Julian: Three bay two storey house with projecting gables to north and south. South gable half timbered over canted bay window. Note leaded lights and window furniture. Original garage to south and stained glass staircase window.	Positive

		East Common	26	26 Heatherside				5/486 Heatherside - GV II C18, altered C19. Painted brick; old tile roof with brick dentilled eaves. Two storeys. First floor with 3 sashes, under cornices, the central one as a French window. Ground floor with two 3-light bay windows. Central rectangular projection possibly formed entrance porch to pair of cottages. Early C19 Gothic garden railings. Note hedges to north and south. Poor decorative condition. Marian: C18 two storey cottage. Brick painted white with old clay tile roof. A photo of c.1900 shows a central porch with half-timbered gable, since enclosed and covered with small balcony with insertion of central French window to first floor. This work may have been done in 1937 when plans for alterations and additions were submitted. It seems unlikely that the cottage was ever two since it was a single dwelling in the 1840 Tithe Map. The 1900 photo also shows a picket fence to the front.

Red brick; old tile-hipped roof with brick dentil- led eaves. Two storeys. Both floors with central window dummy. First floor with 2 sashes, set flush and with timber lintels. Ground floor with 2 flush sashes. Entrances on return elevation have wooden door hoods with brackets. All windows with glazing bars. Marian: Early C19 pair of cottages, but shown as one on the 1840 Tithe Map – apparently divided into two by 1876. They have retained their symmetrical composition with identical extensions at each side to accommodate garages and rooms above. Red brick – tile hanging on extensions - with fully hipped, almost pyramidal roof, with stack at apex. Blind windows in centre. Small front gardens.	Listed

		East Common	31-38	St. Huberts Cottages Nos 1 to 9 (consec)				5/484 St Huberts Cottages Nos 1 to 9 (consec) - G.II Late C19 and originally a terrace of 8 cottages with central Reading Room. Brick; machine tile roof with dog-toothed cornice. Two storeys. Central advanced and gabled Reading Room. Ground floor with gabled porch and flanking arched windows. First floor with French doors opening onto a balcony with wrought iron railings and flanked by modern windows. Wings each with 2 gabled porches each flanked by arched casements above having balconies with iron railings. Marian: Landmark row of buildings with prominent central gable on an important site on the common-edge. Now nine cottages but originally eight, with a Reading Room in the central gabled portion. Built c.1866 by the author and adventurer, Thomas Mayne Reid (1818-1883), (pseudonym Charles Beach) a flamboyant character who also built a Mexican style house on Oxford Road, the Rancho, since demolished. Pevsner writes "charming late C19, with a taller gabled former reading room at the centre. Scalloped bargeboards to the gabled porches and decorative guards to the arched windows." A photograph of about 1930 shows the building with a prominent lantern on the roof of the Reading Room. The loss of this original feature is detrimental to the building's character as are the rectangular windows inserted to the first floor of the former Reading Room and at number 1. The original round-headed windows have been retained on the other cottages. Old photographs also show that the roofs of the main building and porches were originally covered in plain clay tiles, some apparently scalloped, with ridge crests.	Listed

		Marsham Lane	02 to 04	2, 2, and 4,1 Marsham Lane Cottages				Double cottages probably built in the early 1920s and remarkably unaltered. Symmetrical composition with twin front gables seeming to frame the central chimney stack on ridge. Casement multi-paned windows painted black and white in Edwardian style. Pebbledashed walls painted white contrast with plain clay tiled roof. Flat-roofed porch with room to side under single-storey gable. Note in particular the high curving red brick boundary walls of the former Marsham Lodge and the timber outbuilding close to the road, perhaps a relic of the former Marsham Lodge, which makes a significant contribution to the street-scene reinforcing the rural and historic character of the Common. Julian: Pair of cottages, One and a half storeys, pebble dashed. Two gables facing road with roof continued over porch. Note original transomed mullioned windows	Positive
		Marsham Lodge		Marsham Lodge 1 - 25				25 houses of contemporary design completed in 1969 by Span Developments. Designed by architects Eric Lyons and Ivor Cunningham with garden design by Preben Jakobsen. The quality of work by Span, regarded as somewhat revolutionary in its day has been recognised by an RIBA retrospective exhibition. More detail about the Span philosophy and Marsham Lodge is available from www.marshamlodge.co.uk . Restrictive covenants enforced by the Residents Society have helped maintain the houses and grounds in accordance with that philosophy. The development has matured well to blend in with its surroundings. See also Chapter 4, part 4. Julian: On the site of the original Marsham Lodge, this is an architect designed small estate of near identical 25 two story linked terraced dwellings and arranged in blocks of London brick. For each unit the first floor has partial black painted weather boarding and a single pitch slate roof. Note the discreet garages beyond tall compatible garden walls. The site is well landscaped with some original trees, newer planting and grass.	Positive

		Oxford Road	2	One Stop Shop – original building to rear of modern shop extension				Red brick building probably C18 or early C19 unfortunately truncated by the loss of its eastern end – presumably when the French Horn was redeveloped in the 1940s. A range of buildings to the rear shown on old aerial photographs has also been lost. Hipped old clay tiled roof – brick in Flemish bond. Windows altered. Original doorcase at western end. Study of this building has potential to yield evidence of the history of this part of Gerrards Cross. Julian: Two bay two storey house with tiled roof. Sash windows replaced by aluminium. Large single storey extension facing road with shop fronts for fish & chip shop and newsagent / convenience store.	Positive

Set further back than numbers 5-7. Pitched roof covered with machined plain clay tiles and a chimney stack at each end of the roof. The stack on the western elevation is a significant feature in an exposed situation at the junction of Oxford Road and Dukes Wood drive. Pebbledashed walls painted white. Front bay windows to ground floor with plain clay tiled hipped roofs. The picket fence and informal ivy hedge to front add character. John Bailey also built much larger houses in Gerrards Cross, including his own house, the Rowans, and Badminton House, both in Marsham Way. He also built the NatWest bank on the corner of Station Road. Julian: Pair of small semi detached by local builder. Gabled tiled roof. Bay windows with hipped tiled roofs. Houses built by Henry Brown whose most notable achievement in Gerrards Cross was the shop development in Station Parade. He also built North Park (part of which is included in the Gerrards Cross Centenary Conservation Area with the greater part in Chiltern District's North Park conservation area). In the 1920s Brown bought land south of the Common from the Bulstrode estate and the plans for these houses were approved around 1925-7. Dinas is set closer to the road but all the others are set well back behind long front gardens with generous planting of shrubs and trees. Rhododendrons in these front gardens make a particularly colourful contribution to the streetscene and are said to be the vestiges of cover planted for game for the benefit of St. Huberts. The houses are in Arts and Craft style – all detached and two-storeys in height. Attic accommodation at number 16, Glendevon, is lit by an eyebrow dormer. Some are in stock-broker Tudor with black and white half-timbering. All have pebbledash render. Roofs are pitched or hipped, covered with plain clay tiles. Most also have gables and prominent chimney stacks are a feature. Windows are casements, usually with leaded lights and there is some stained glass, usually in long staircase windows. All have the character of “garden village” houses, only glimpsed at a distance from the road, along curved drives (most have retained the traditional gravel surface) lined with trees and/or shrubs, set in spacious, green plots. 		Oxford Road	24	Church of St. James, Oxford Road				5/498 Church of St James 23.9.55 - II* Parish Church. 1859. Architect Sir William Tite. White and yellow brick with red brick diapering; Welsh slate roof; cruciform plan with octagonal dome surrounded by 4 square turrets with concave conical roofs. Campanile at north-west. Large church hall to rear built in 2007. Note cedar tree to west. Marian: Built 1856-9. Architect Sir William Tite the architect of the Royal Exchange in London (demolished). Tite seems to have been chosen since he was a friend of the Misses Reid who had the church built as a memorial to their brother, Major-General Alexandeer Reid, M.P. for Windsor. The design is unusual, especially since it departed from the fashionable Gothic of the High Victorian period. Pevsner quotes the Literary Gazette's view that the style was probably "suggested by that modification of Byzantine found in the neighbourhood of Venice and Padua". The mixture of Byzantine and Italian influences is evident in the combination of dome and Italianate campanile, but there seems to be no evidence for the explanation that one Miss Reid favoured a dome and the other a tower so both were built! T. Hardy & Sons of Cowley, Uxbridge were the builders. The gravestone in the churchyard of the principal stone-mason, John Walpole, has an inscription from Chronicles - "The men did the work faithfully". The building is a landmark by virtue of its scale, form and materials. The brickwork of three colours - white, yellow and red - has now weathered but must have looked startling when new. Ornatmentation is provided through the polychrome and gauged brickwork. The church was enlarged in the 1950s with further alterations in the 1970s and new disabled-access arrangements in 1997. The church stands in a spacious churchyard which was enlarged in 1878 with a further donation from Louisa Reid of 5 acres of land and contains graves of many notable people who made their homes in Gerrards Cross, including the Duke of Somerset and the actress Margaret Rutherford. The 1984 vicarage and recent hall of contemporary design, timber-clad to suit the woodland setting, are outside the conservation area.	Listed

			26-29	26, Silver Birches, 28 Newlands & 29 Oak Croft				Three detached houses developed by A Ayres in 1935/6. Silver Birches is all red/brown brick in a broadly Arts and Crafts style with central gable. Hipped roofs covered in plain clay tiles. Crittall windows (original?). Although still set back from the road these houses are somewhat closer to the road than those east of the church. They have the similar characteristics of spacious plots with mature trees and shrub belts next to the road. Newlands is rendered and whitewashed. Casement windows with small leaded lights and brick lintels and sills. Hipped plain clay tiled roof with overlarge but early flat-roofed dormer. Two prominent chimneys. Recessed porch with stacked tiled surround typical of Arts and Crafts style. Oak Croft (formerly Santusa) is in a Tudorbethan style with red/brown brick ground floor and black and white applied half-timbering to upper storey. Large extension at front to form an L-shaped composition, well-matched. "Garden village" character affected by apparent sacrifice of front garden to hard-standing.	Positive

		Oxford Road	45A	Original Bulstrode Estate Wall				From Bull Hotel to beyond the Finlandia Centre an original wall which is believed to form the original boundary between Chalfont and Fulmer.
		Oxford Road	46	Bull Hotel				There are many modern extensions at the rear of the hotel which are not regarded as making a positive contribution. The central historic core and the ranges either side of it which front onto Oxford Road do make a positive contribution. Pevsner describes the Bull as "long, white and rambling and C18 in its tall central parts." Formerly called the Oxford Arms and featured on the 1686 Bulstrode Estate map in a form with three gables facing the road. There is documentary evidence that the building was altered and extended around 1735. Not a true coaching inn but used by visitors to Bulstrode and private coach travellers. After 1918 it was used as staff accommodation for Bulstrode. There were extensive alterations during the 1930s after the building was sold off with the rest of the Bulstrode estate, and it reopened as a hotel. Expansion continues with a recent programme of extensions and alterations. Julian: Four bay, three storey cement rendered inn with slate roof and large glazed porch through three bays with flat roof supporting inn sign. First floor sash windows. Second floor modern replacements. First and second floor windows have shutters with harp shaped carving. Long range of bedrooms over two floors to the east. c 1930s. Built in the 1930s to plans submitted by Messrs Campus of Gerrards Cross. Although not a local characteristic thatched houses were a feature of the Arts and Crafts movement. The Thatched House in Marsham Lane, designed by A. Jessop Hardwick in 1908 has since been demolished. Lovells exhibited a thatched house at the Ideal Home exhibition. Julian: Large five bay semi bungalow with projecting east bay. Cement rendered, thatched roof. Note thatched dormers. Thatched roof to bay window in east bay and thatched roof over original porch. 		Oxford Road	47	The Apple Tree				Formerly the Fox and Hounds, presumably for the hunting connections. There was previously a cottage at the back which was demolished probably in the early 20th century. The original building (perhaps late C18-early C19) has recently been sympathetically extended. Plain clay tiled roofs. Colourwashed render and modillion cornice and Georgian style front door with small flat door hood on wooden brackets giving the main building a modest Georgian appearance. The garden and car park are nicely landscaped. Julian: Small two bay brick building, cement rendered old tile roof with dentiled brick cornice. Two storey house with projecting west wing which has first floor jettied over bay window. White painted pebbledash with red brick window lintels and sills. Wide front porch under sloping roof. All roofs plain clay tiled. Original casement windows. The stone gate post with its conical head is important since it marks the old position of the driveway to Orchehill House. The driveway was diverted to the west to follow part of what is now Bulstrode Way, in order to make way for this house. The house was originally called Hillcrest since it stands at the top of the rise in the Oxford Road where it meets Bull Lane and is therefore in a gateway location to the Common and the conservation area. Julian: Three bay two storey pebble dash tiled roof projecting west bay first floor jettied out over six light bay window. Note original wooden casement windows and original furniture. Note gatepost the termination of original flint face wall to drive of Orchehill House built c1860. The driveway was diverted to the west early c20th (now Bulstrode Way) to accommodate the lodge. 		West Common	0	The Packhorse (now Wildwood Restaurant & Bar)				According to the History the deeds show the original Packhorse was built in 1707. The building was much altered by Benskin's brewery in 1931 to the plans of J C F James, ARIBA. The extent of the original building left standing is not known but the roofs to the east end appear old. There were cottages at the rear which were demolished in the 1930s. Here were the new kennels and a house for the huntsman, "Huntsman's Hall", built by the Berkeley Hunt in 1796. The centuries-old link with the Packhorse name has recently been broken by the renaming of the building. Julian: Old established public house remodelled in 1931 by Benskins Brewery. 		West Common	6	6 Heath Cottage				1830 datestone. Maps and documents show there were three cottages here, perhaps until the 1920s. Now one large altered and extended cottage, rendered and colourwashed with slate hipped roof. Style consistent with early Victorian date. Picturesque appearance particularly in spring with wistaria on front wall. Set in spacious plot with attractive gardens and mature beech-hedge to front. Julian: Three bay two storey hipped slate roof flat roof bay windows to east bay and on west wall. Note west facing window over bay with gothic style. Stock brick with red brick dressing, regrettably white-washed on 11 & 12. Slate gable-ended roof with ridge crest and pierced barge boards. Three ridge chimney stacks – one in centre and one at each end. Only number 12 retains its sash windows. All have canted bay windows to ground floor under hipped plain clay tiled roofs. Front doors recessed in round headed porches with keystones. Ornate wrought gates and fences at 9, 10 & 12. Restoration of such a fence at number 11 would help to restore harmony to the row. Julian: Row of four terraced houses each with canted bay to ground floor and recessed front door behind round headed arch. Two are natural brick and two are whitewashed. First and second floors each with 3 sashes. Ground floor with 2 sashes and a headed closed porch with attached Doric columns. On right hand, 2-storey splayed bay with parapet. First floor with one sash. Ground floor with 3 sashes. Large two storey wing of house to the south with old tiled roof and half hipped gables ?originally a barn? Marian: Landmark three storey building. Once called Belleview or Belleview Farm, then Latchmoor House, renamed Walpole House by its Dutch diamond-merchant owner after HMS Walpole, which, during World War II, escorted ships taking Dutch diamonds to safety in England. The story was made into a film in 1959 – Operation Amsterdam. Earliest part of the house is C17. Refronted in C18 and enlarged in C19 when the distinctive two-storey flat-roofed canted bay with a tall chimney on its eastern side was added. Later still the main house was joined to the neighbouring cottage (on the east side) which already joined the stable/coach house. Farm use probably ceased late C19.	Listed

Brown brick; slate roof behind parapet with ball on pedestal at corners. Two storeys and attic. First floor with five 2-light casements in heavy wooden frames and with cambered brick relieving arches. Ground floor with enclosed wooden porch with attached Roman Doric columns and, on left hand, three 2-light casements and on right hand, one 2-light casement with cambered brick relieving arches. Glazing bars. Two dormers in roof. All windows with glazing bars. Marian: Another farmhouse converted into a genteel residence. A brick façade was added probably in the early C19 so the attic storey is partly obscured by a brick parapet. The front has been made asymmetrical by an addition designed by Forbes & Tate in 1911. This gives the house an uncharacteristic wide, flat appearance. Interesting brick, mainly brown, but some purple stock bricks at rear. Old photographs show a white picket fence with pollarded trees forming the front boundary which contributed to the picturesque rural scene, now replaced by railings.

		West Common	28	28 Waterside with garden railings				4/513 Waterside with garden railings - GV II Early C19, restored. Cement rendered, colour-washed brick; machine tile-hipped roof with modillion cornice. Two storeys. First floor with 2 flush sashes with lattice shutters. Ground floor with 3 sashes with small hoods on brackets. All windows with glazing bars. Spearhead garden railings in front. Marian: Formerly called Latchmoor Villa. Another former farmhouse which was shown on the Bulstrode estate map of 1789 and probably rebuilt in the early C19. Fully hipped roof covered with plain clay tiles and a prominent corbelled chimney stack on the front roof. Modillion cornice. The eastern rear section has a pyramidal roof. Originally the door would have been in the centre where there is now a window. Sash windows with glazing bars. Picturesque appearance with colour-washed walls, shutters to upper windows and tiny hoods over ground floor windows. The wrought iron garden railings are specifically included in the listing.	Listed

		West Common	29	29 The Coach House				Large semi bungalow of reused bricks with tile roof and recessed dormer windows. Built c1960s in the grounds of Harewood Lodge number 55 Bulstrode Way. Note the outbuildings which were originally part of Harewood Lodge.
		West Common	30-32	30-32 West End Cottages	NB NUMBERED FROM OXFORD ROAD 1, 2 & 3 West End Cottages – 30/31/32 West Common			Three cottages built c.1870 by the Bulstrode estate. High Victorian style with decorative brickwork. Red brick laid in Flemish bond. Blind brick arches over ground floor windows leave little room for first floor windows. Slate roof with ridge crest and two prominent corbelled ridge chimney stacks. Brick modillion cornice. Central gable with pierced barge boards. Three gabled porches – one for each cottage with similar pierced barge boards and timber finials. Raking brick window sills. Stone keystones to arches over windows and stone at sides of some window sills. Casement windows – some altered. The set-back of these cottages diminishes their visual impact. Julian: A row of three two storey red brick estate cottages with slate roofs built by Bulstrode c1870. Note ornamental barge boarding to central projecting gable and porch. Also brick relieving arches over ground floor and central casement windows in gable cf to similar style in St Hubert's Cottages, East Common. Note elaborate barge boarding to south gable end and porch below, which is in need of repair. Number 30, 1, West End Cottages appears unoccupied.	Positive
		West Common	33	33 Seaton Cottage				Late C19 picturesque house – very prominent in views of West Common. Rendered and painted white; Welsh slate roof with ridge stacks at each end. Symmetrical composition with canted bay windows either side of the front door set in arched recess. Three upper windows have Venetian slatted shutters. The most distinctive feature is the hipped glass verandah added in 1907 which extends across the whole of the ground floor front. Sash windows. Julian: Three bay two storey house built c1850. Slate roof with ridge tiles. Cement rendered three light bay window to ground floor under verandah added in 1907. Sash windows and shutters to first floor.	Positive

		West Common	34	34 Greyroofs				Three bay two storey modern house in Victorian style. White painted brick with rusticated quoins of engineering bricks, slate roof with pierced ridge tiles. Note cast iron balustrade to balcony over porch and garage with matching porch support column. Note slate hung bay window with lead roof.
		West Common	35	35 Devon Cottages				Two cottages now combined into one and renamed by Thomas Westacott, builder of the adjacent Devon Villas who had been born in Devon. Probably early C19 – rendered and colourwashed with shallow hipped slate roof with central four-pot chimney stack and modillions at eaves. White picket fence contributes to picturesque appearance. Julian: Small pair of single bay cottages, cement rendered with slate roofs. Smallest cottages in Gerrards now combined into a single dwelling.	Positive
1382	1382	West Common	37-40	37, 38, 39 & 40 'Devon Villas'	Three new houses	Westacott Mr Thos	23-Apr-07	Built in 1907 by Uxbridge builder, Thomas Westacott, who had been born in Devon. Central date stone. Row of four two-storey cottages. Stock brick to ground floor with red brick bands. Upper storey pebbledashed and whitewashed. Front doors set in recessed porches. Four gables with black and white half-timbering. Slate roof with ridge crest. Three chimney stacks on ridge – one in centre and one at each end of the roof. Sash windows with two arched upper panes with 4 smaller arched panes above those. Particularly important to retain the harmony of the composition, windows, doors and decorative treatment of this row. Julian: Row of four terraced houses with projecting bay windows with gables having ornamental half timbering. First floor pebble dash, slate roof with red ridge tiles. Note original glazing bars to upper sections of sash windows. Name and date plaque (1907).	Positive
